Tony's Suicide Chopper

Custom bikes – especially those with a higher downtube – are mostly converted into a comfy cruiser. Rick created this machine for his friend Tony, who likes such bikes, but doesn't like cruising! It had to be a rigid chopper with enough power between the legs, where the tacho easily reaches over 200 kmh. Tony wanted a real sledgehammer with which to fly, and in Germany there are still motorway sections without speed limit, where he can live his dreams. The question is: would a Japanese Superbike not have been better for this purpose? Definitely, but firstly anybody can do this, and secondly, that would simply have been boring!
