In 2014, with little fanfare for a Harley-Davidson model of such historical significance, the Dyna Low Rider came back into the model range. It was hardly noticed by the press and public, who turned their attention to the just introduced 750 and 500 "Street" and experimental electric motorcycles. Adding to this the at the same time introduced Rushmore Touring models, such a return can easily be overlooked! In 112 years of company history, and the repeatedly used abbreviations for partly further developed models of a series, it is difficult to say which model description is "active" presently. And customizers are anyway not fixed to a particular model year, they can transform any Harley-Davidson into a piece of art...like Rick's Harley-Davidson in Baden-Baden.

For the 2015 Dyna Low Rider not even new parts had to be developed.
