Street Bobber

Rick's Motorcycles has made a real Bobber out of the Harley-Davidson Street Bob. The solo seat and swinging rear fender underline this style since the 50s. Today it's more popular than ever and is valued for its purism. At the beginning of Bobber building often a virtue was made out of necessity and due to a lack of parts, one had to use what was available. The results were often "honest" bikes, created with little money and without having many embellishments, but which still looked good. Rick's approached this Bobber project according to these principles.
